

Please enter my strong objection to efforts to limit the XM Radio stations from providing Weather, Traffic and other pertinent information regarding travel. It is often impossible to obtain current information while traveling other than from an XM radio channel. It is extremely difficult to find distant local stations with good reception where you are located when traveling and this prohibits you from changing your route in a timely manner to preclude backtracking. This becomes particularly troublesome when in mountainous areas. Any policy changes which do not maximize the amount of available information for travelers is particularly detrimental during these times of high energy costs.

Sincerely, D. Ross Beins
